

Docker is a set of platform as a service product that use OS-Level virtualisation to deliver software packages in packages called containers.